

The Fall 2021 EPSDT ECHO Clinic recordings are now available online!

July 24, 2023

Keystone First is pleased to announce that the Fall 2021 Early and Periodic Screening, Diagnosis, and Treatment (EPSDT) ECHO recordings are now available on our website. The Extension for Community Healthcare Outcomes (ECHO) model was developed by the University of New Mexico Health Sciences Center and is now used nationwide and internationally.

EPSDT screening is an important and unique opportunity for Providers to perform a comprehensive evaluation of a child's health and provide appropriate follow-up diagnostic and treatment services.

The 2021 Fall series consists of five recordings in which you can increase your understanding of:

- The impact of social determinants on members' access to early and consistent health care.
- EPSDT periodicity schedules, requirements, and pay for-performance goals.
- The relationship between EPSDT, HEDIS®, and preventive care quality measures.
- Keystone First's role in supporting identification and management of members with unmet needs.
- How to complete and report well-child visits, immunizations, and lead and developmental screenings.
